Background

"The demesne of Myrross Wood was purchased by Reverend Arthur Herbert (b. 1726, d. 1785 or 1818), Vicar of Myrross and husband to Helena Townsend (b. 1726, m. 1752, d. after 1785) of Castletownsend, and the stately 5-bay Georgian-styled Myrross Wood House was likely built between 1752 – 1785" (Carrig, 2020, p. 13)

The house was purchased by the Irish Missionaries' Society in 1946 and was used as a study house for young missionaries. The south wing was totally rebuilt in 1959 and the interior of the house has been adapted to the needs of the community over the years. The west wing was reconstructed and refurbished in 1987. But, apart from these relatively small modifications, the house remains as it was built by the Rev. Arthur Herbert in the 18th century and extended by the Earl of Kingston in the early 19th century. It stands on 100 acres of woodland and it has served as a community facility and retreat centre since 1970.

Myrross Wood House is overlooking an inlet from the Celtic Sea (Figure 1 & Figure 2). The northern and western sections of the building are built into the hillside and are therefore more susceptible to rainwater run-off and excess moisture accumulation in the building fabric. (Carrig, 2020). It is a two-storey building with a floor area of approximately 1300m².

Building Survey

Heating is provided by an oil boiler and distributed through radiators. The hot water also comes from the main system.

The house is considered historic but not protected. It has 52 bedrooms most of which are sized for single occupancy. The construction is masonry (part cavity – 1959) with artificial slate roofs over attic voids. The ground floor is part solid, and part suspended. The windows are generally double-glazed uPVC. The house is heated by oil heating and distributed through radiators and ventilated naturally. The hot water also comes from the main system.

Some Thermal improvements have been carried out to date as outlined in the report produced by Carrig Conservation. (Carrig, 2020, p. 9)

THRIVE
Town Centre First Heritage Revival Scheme

Minister O'Donnell announces launch of new €120m fund to renovate heritage buildings in town centres

- THRIVE scheme offers local authorities up to €7m to renovate disused heritage buildings in cities, regional growth centres and key towns
- Initiative has potential to transform town centres across the regions supporting delivery of the Government's Town Centre First Policy

A new funding scheme under Ireland's two European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) Regional Programmes is providing €120m to support local authorities and their citizens to re-imagine town centres and to transform publicly owned vacant or derelict heritage buildings within those town centres through renovation, renewal, and adaptive reuse.

Green Fact
Modern dishwashers are energy efficient, using 2.5 litres per cycle. This can make a more difference to lowering your carbon footprint than all the greenery you can plant. The dishwasher can also save the planet by drying instead of leaving clothes to dry.

O'CONNELL STREET ENHANCEMENT

BRINGING SLIGO A STEP AHEAD

Sometimes a bit of a space benefits us all. That's why the town's new pedestrian priority zone is so important. Thanks to the EU, O'Connell Street has more space than ever, creating a more accessible town centre for pedestrians and local businesses alike. All part of a continued commitment to offer Sligionians even more ways to enjoy the town they love.
